FILM AND AUDIO

The Exorcism of Emily Rose (2005). Story synopsis: "Attorney Erin Bruner (Laura Linney) always manages to keep her emotions in check when she's in the middle of a case, but she finds herself unraveling when she decides to represent a priest (Tom Wilkinson) who's conducted an exorcism gone horribly awry. The highly charged case, in which Erin battles an overconfident state lawyer (Aaron Douglas) who thinks he has a slam dunk, leaves her questioning her life choices, career prospects and beliefs." This film provides a realistic (not sensationalized) depiction of a demonized woman's symptoms, and effectively calls into question our culture's modernist presuppositions, but propounds some bad theology.
